

Hi Year 4!

This home learning pack is all about the topic 'Heroes'. You will still be focusing on the question 'What makes Greta Thunberg a hero?' and your topic work is still centred around climate change.

Your science and geography work will be focused on the noticeable changes that have taken place due to climate change and the impact this has had on the environment. You will be continuing your learning all about electricity, but with a slightly different focus on electrical safety. We don't want you to go hunting around your house this time though. We have linked some useful websites for you to safely investigate electrical safety!

It's time to develop your artistic skills by using some step by step drawing tutorials. You will have even get the chance to be creative and design your very own den! Remember we are focusing on how we can take more care of our environment, so be sure to use recycled materials in your designs!

In your English writing, we would like you to try and include some subordinating conjunctions and clauses. Remember, these join a main clause (a sentence that has a subject and a verb and makes sense on its own) and a subordinate clause (a clause that gets its meaning from the main clause). In class, we learnt the mnemonic I SAW A WABUB to help us remember our subordinate conjunctions (if since as when although while after before until because). They come at the start of the subordinating clause (the bit that adds the extra information). Have a go at including some of these in your work over the next few weeks!

Finally, don't forget to try and do some reading each day. You should all have the VIPERS pages at the front of your planners. These have lots of questions to deepen and test your understanding of the text. As well as this, try and practise the focus spellings that we have attached to the English sheet. We have selected 20 for you to focus on so you could focus on 2 each day of the week, until your next work pack!

We will continue to send you daily messages and give you prompts each day of what learning you could focus on!

We hope you enjoy your next learning pack!

From Miss Welch, Mrs Frost and Mrs Reeve 😊
